A powerful political woman ... Who is it?

* Relating to the government of a country.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Indira Gandhi was elected twice to be prime minister of India. Her first term of office was from 1966 to 1977 and her second was from 1980 to 1984. During these periods, she was considered one of the world's most powerful women in politics.

Indira Gandhi was involved in politics from a young age. In 1938, when she was 21 years old, Gandhi joined the National Congress party and became active in the fight for India's independence.

India, which used to be a British colony, would separate from Britain in 1948. Gandhi's father, Jawaharlal Nehru, was the first prime minister of the independent country. As Nehru's only daughter, Gandhi used to look after her father. She would greet guests and look after them in her father's absence. Gandhi used to serve as his confidante and would accompany him on foreign trips from time to time.

Learning Points

The Simple Past Tense

Remember, you use the Simple Past tense to talk about events that are finished.

Simple Past tense verbs can be regular or irregular.

Regular verbs end in -ed or -ied.

Irregular verbs change in different ways.

Regular Verb	Past Tense	Irregular Verb	Past Tense
elect	elected	be	was
consider	considered	become	became
involve	involved	fight	fought
join	joined

Examples:

- She was elected twice.
- She became the prime minister of India.

Used to and Would to Talk About Past Habits

You can use the expressions used to and would to talk about events or activities that were usual or repetitive in the past. You may use them to describe past routines.

You used USED TO with all types of verbs, including general condition or specific actions.

Example:

I used to talk about politics.

Indira used to look after her father.

You used WOULD when there is a specific time for the action to happen.

Example:

Indira would accompany her father on foreign trips from time to time.

You use USED TO or WOULD followed by the basic form of the verb (infinitive).

Examples:

I would read about India when I was at school.

I used to love Indian history.
